He was wounded in the left arm on 2nd September but did not return home and after recovering he rejoined his regiment. He was badly wounded in the head during the aftermath of the Battle of the Somme and died of his wounds on 13th December 1916 and was buried in Warlincourt Halte British Cemetery, Saulty, Pas-de-Calais, France. Warlincourt and Saulty are villages on either side of the main road between Arras and Doullens. The site of the cemetery was chosen in May 1916. It was used from June 1916 to May 1917 by the 20th and 43rd Casualty Clearing Stations, in February 1917 by the 1st/1st South Midland, and from April to June 1917 by the 32nd. From June 1917, the cemetery was practically unused until the fighting of May and June 1918, when field ambulances buried in it.
